Thirteen months before the 9/11 attacks, FBI agents raided a safehouse in Charlotte, N.C. Inside they found cash, documents written in Arabic—and cigarettes. The smuggling operation exploited the tax differential between North Carolina, which has low cigarette taxes at 5 cents a pack, and Michigan, with high taxes at 75 cents a pack. The smugglers would drive the 680 miles from Charlotte to Detroit in a rented van with 800 to 1,500 cartons of cigarettes purchased with cash in North Carolina. The cigarettes would then be sold to convenience stores in Detroit, which sold them to customers. Each trip — which required no special skills for the 13-hour drive — would net $3,000 to $10,000. The recipient of the smuggling profits was Hezbollah.
